About the Conference

Most of the conventional materials do not meet the demands required for both, their surface and bulk properties when used as biomaterials. An effective approach for developing a clinically applicable biomaterial is to modify the surface of the material which already has excellent bio-functionality and bulk properties. Bio-material modification using grafting and crosslinking are key ways to achieve this in an economical way and without the need for developing new materials. Researchers seeking information that bridges the knowledge gap between the scientific principles and industrial applications of targeted bio-conjugates for effective cancer treatment. It also provides the premier interdisciplinary forum for researchers, practitioners and educators to present and discuss the most recent innovations, trends, and concerns, practical challenges encountered and the solutions adopted in the field of biomaterials with drug targeting. This conference aims to bring together leading academic scientists, researchers and research scholars to exchange and share their experiences and research results about all aspects of bio-materials and their use in targeting the drug for cancer treatment.
